

WW1 - September 1914

Map - Race to the Sea

For a three-week period during September and October 1914 following the developments in trench warfare, both sides gave up frontal assault battles and began trying to out-flank each other's Northern flank.

This period is referred to as the 'Race to the Sea' the German aim was to gain control of territory to the coast, to push back and defeat the allies in the process.
