Guardsman Michael Roland, from Worthing, West Sussex, was shot during an exchange of fire while on patrol in the Nahr-e-Saraj district of Helmand province. The father of twins joined the Army in 2009 and deployed to Afghanistan for the first time at the start of April. After his initial training, he spent a year undertaking duties at the Royal Palaces and participating in state ceremonial tasks as part of Nijmegen Company, Grenadier Guards. He joined 1st Battalion Grenadier Guards in November 2010 and was a rifleman in Number Three Platoon, part of The Queen's Company. Lieutenant Colonel James Bowder, Commanding Officer 1st Battalion Grenadier Guards, said Guardsman Roland was "sparky", diligent and super-fit, he was a terrific soldier with a bright future". He added: "We are all extremely proud of Guardsman Roland's selfless commitment to this important mission. "Our prayers are with his baby twins, his parents, girlfriend and broader family. We share their great sense of loss and will never forget this most extraordinary of guardsmen." Guardsman Roland, based at Main Operating Base Price near Gereschk in Helmand province, was part of the company team charged with searching compounds. He deployed on a three-day operation on 26 April. Sergeant Archer, Platoon Sergeant 3 Platoon, The Queen's Company, said Guardsman Roland "put his job before anything else. A fit, keen soldier and loyal to the end, Guardsman Roland was the template to which all Guardsmen should aspire".
